

“The Difficulty of Sustaining Faith”

Mar. 6, 1275 (Age 54)

The Lotus Sutra refers to in the passage, “the most difficult to believe and the most difficult to understand.” Many people accept the Lotus Sutra upon hearing it. However, it is rare to find those who “remember and never forget what they have been taught” when the great hardships that they have heard about actually befall them. Accepting is easy, but continuing is difficult. Even so, one must maintain one’s faith in order to attain Buddhahood.

(Gosho p. 775 / Selected Gosho Passages p. 56)

Nichiren Shoshu Myosenji

“The Difficulty of Sustaining Faith”

Mar. 6, 1275 (Age 54)

The Lotus Sutra refers to in the passage, “the most difficult to believe and the most difficult to understand.” Many people accept the Lotus Sutra upon hearing it. However, it is rare to find those who “remember and never forget what they have been taught” when the great hardships that they have heard about actually befall them. Accepting is easy, but continuing is difficult. Even so, one must maintain one’s faith in order to attain Buddhahood.

(Gosho p. 775 / Selected Gosho Passages p. 56)

Nichiren Shoshu Myosenji