

The Opening of the Eyes

(Kaimoku-sho)

Feb. 1272 (Age 51)

I hereby make a great pledge. Even if I am told that I will assume the position of the sovereign of Japan if I cast aside the Lotus Sutra and follow the Sutra of Meditation on the Buddha of Infinite Life (Kammuryoju-kyo) and look forward to an afterlife; even if I am told that my father and mother will be beheaded if I do not utter the Nembutsu; and regardless of the various such great obstacles I may encounter, I will never succumb to them so long as the wise men do not overturn my teachings. All other great obstacles are like dust before the wind. I shall be the pillar of Japan. I shall be the eyes of Japan, and I shall be the great vessel of Japan. This is what I pledge, and I shall never abandon it.
