

Gosho Passage of the Month

October 2022

On Prayer
(Kito-sho)

1272 (Age 51)

Even if one missed while pointing at the earth, even if one tied up the sky, even if the ebb and flow of the tide ceased, and even if the sun rose in the west, the prayers of the votary of the Lotus Sutra would never be unanswered. If, by an unlikely chance of a thousand to one, all the bodhisattvas, the human and heavenly beings, the eight kinds of lowly beings, the two sages, the two heavenly deities, and the ten demon goddess daughters fail to emerge to protect him, they will be committing the offenses of disparaging Shakyamuni and all the other Buddhas above and of betraying those of the nine worlds below. The practitioners may always be insincere; lacking in wisdom; impure as persons; and not in possession of virtues from practicing the precepts. Even so, those practitioners will be protected, without fail, as long as they chant Nam-Myoho-Renge-Kyo.
